Last chance to vote in Kentucky primary today

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Voters in Trimble County have one last day to vote in this year's primary election in Kentucky, with polls open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. today at Milton and Bedford Elementary Schools.

County Clerk Tina Browning said between early voting and mail-out ballots, applications for ballots surpassed 1,400 this year, topping the 2012 and 2016 presidential primaries. Monday was the last day of early voting at the Trimble County Courthouse, with over 60 ballots counted by 10 a.m. that morning, Browning said.

A big reason for that, she said, might be that Kentucky has never allowed early voting until the COVID-19 pandemic forced the state to look at new procedures.

"I've always thought that if we allowed early voting, more people would vote," Browning said.

Two Republican candidates from Henry County are running to fill the seat left to be vacated by retiring incumbent 47th District State Rep. Rick Rand (D-Bedford), which covers Trimble, Carroll, Henry and Gallatin Counties. Robert "Bobby" Foree, a seventh-generation farmer and attorney with a law practice in New Castle is running against Angela Rabourn, a younger opponent with experience in the healthcare and financial industries, according to both candidates' websites.

Rabourn currently serves as the youth chair for the Henry County Republican Party and touts Second Amendment rights and pro-life policies as her major issues, having been endorsed by the anti-abortion group Kentucky Right to Life. She also lists the opioid epidemic, education and transparency on government spending as her major platforms.

Foree is also promising to uphold gun rights, fiscal responsibility and pro-life policies, on top of advocating

Early voting for today's Kentucky Primary Election was slow at the Trimble County Courthouse in Bedford, Kentucky, on Monday, but voting machines were standing ready and there was plenty of hand sanitizer on hand to help curb the spread of COVID-19.

Trimble Courthouse remains partially open

Special procedures are in place

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Trimble County Courthouse offices are partially open or finding alternatives for operating three months into the COVID-19 pandemic, in accordance with Kentucky Supreme Court orders.

Circuit Court Clerk's offices began limited reopenings June 1 with several new procedures in place for those seeking driver's licenses, civil court services or going through the criminal court system.

Courtrooms are open and jury proceedings have resumed, but public access is still restricted and jury trials are not expected to resume until after August, Circuit Court Clerk Stacy Bruner said. Only court personnel and 10 other people, such as attorneys and witnesses are allowed in gthe courtroom at a time, Sheriff Charlie Kelton, whose's office is monitoring attendance, said.

Civil courts are also functioning without allowing foot traffic and residents have the option e-filing or mailing in complaints or payments, Bruner said.

Foot traffic is only being allowed for certain situations, such as those seeking emergency protective orders, payments to the courts, or for certain driver's license appointments. Driver's registration has forced Trimble to be especially nimble, with multiple procedures in place.

According to information sent out by Bruner earlier this month, those whose license or ID was lost or stolen between March 1 and June 30 must apply for a duplicate or renewal through an online form on KYCourts.gov. That form must be completed and emailed to TrimbleCountyDL@KYCourts.net with a valid phone number where the county can contact applicants to collect credit or debit card information. Payment by cash, check or money order can be attached to a completed printed form and deposited in the drop box located at the

$545K grant to allow Nucor to ship more by barge

Plan will take 2,000 trucks off area highways

BY STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

JEFERSONVILLE — A $545,000 federal grant to expand the Ports of Indiana facility in Jeffersonville is expected to take more than 2,000 heavy trucks off local highways annually.

Ports Authority plans to use the federal grant to locate a steel barge shuttle site that officials say will boost steel coil shipments at the state's Ohio River port in Jeffersonville from a manufacturer in Gallatin County, Kentucky.

The U.S. Department of Transportation grant will support the $778,000 project, which includes building an outdoor storage area and buying a forklift to handle steel coils at the port.

The project was developed with Nucor Steel Gallatin in Kentucky to allow barge shipment of steel coils from the Ghent, Kentucky, manufacturing site to the Jeffersonville port.

The Ports of Indiana said the development will bring supply chain efficiencies to Nucor Steel and its private sector partners while also taking more than 2,000 trucks off northern Kentucky and southern Indiana highways.

Ports of Indiana Senior Vice President Jody Peacock said the federal grant would provide critical funding for the project to "allow Nucor to better utilize our Jeffersonville port's cargo handling facilities to serve customers and to grow future business."

The Jeffersonville port handles Ohio River shipments of steel, agriculture and industrial cargoes, and provides more than 1,000 acres of industrial sites for multimodal businesses. It is operated by the Ports of Indiana, a statewide port authority that manages three ports on the Ohio River and Lake Michigan.

Nucor, which also has rail access, is one of three steel processing industries located along the Ohio River on U.S. 42 in Carroll and Gallatin counties.

Infant death results in felony neglect charges

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A Scott County woman has been charged with felony neglect of a dependent in the death of an infant that had been left in her care.

Candace Jones

Candace Jones, 38, Scottsburg, has been charged with neglect of a dependent resulting in death, a Level 1 felony; reckless supervision by a child care provider resulting in death, a Level 6 felony; and operating a child care home without a license, a Class A misdemeanor.

Indiana State Police began an investigation on May 30, when Detective Brian Busick and crime scene investigators responded to a Scottsburg address after learning of the death of a six-month old infant girl earlier that day.

The infant was reportedly in the care of an unlicensed daycare facility and was found unresponsive when the mother of the child returned from work. The daycare was operated by Candace Jones, who called 911 upon finding the child unresponsive after placing her down to sleep earlier.

The charges were brought after details of the Indiana State Police investigation were reviewed by the Scott County Prosecutor.

Jones was lodged in the Scott County Jail on a $250,000 full cash bond.

TRIMBLE CORONAVIRUS CASES

Trimble, which has now had seven confirmed cases of which only two remain active, is still one of the least-infected counties in Kentucky but also one of the smallest in population. Only 19 of Kentucky's 120 counties have reported fewer positive test results for the coronavirus than Trimble.

Trimble now up to 7 COVID-19 cases

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

The North Central District Health Department in Kentucky on Monday confirmed two new cases of COVID-19 in Trimble County and 29 new cases throughout the four counties served by that agency.

Trimble, which has now had seven confirmed cases of which only two remain active, is still one of the least-infected counties in Kentucky but also one of the smallest in population. Only 19 of Kentucky's 120 counties have reported fewer positive test results for the coronavirus than Trimble.

Meanwhile, Carroll County is up to 29 confirmed cases after adding eight new cases on Tuesday of last week when a local long term health care facility had seven residents and one employee test positive. All residents and staff have since been tested and are being monitored.

That's seven more than Carroll County's Ohio River neighbor, Switzerland County, with just 22 cases but well short of the 56 cases being shown in Jefferson County, Indiana, where the only COVID death has occurred in the four county region bordering the river and connected by the Milton-Madison and Markland Dam bridges.

Bloos leaving Chamber for job in Indy

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Lindsey Bloos, executive director of the Madison Area Chamber of Commerce, has resigned to take a job in Indianapolis.

Lindsey Bloos

Bloos has worked for the Chamber for seven years and spent the past four as its executive director, overseeing the growth of Soup, Stew, Chili and Brew, new fundraisers and creating a single platform of resources for businesses during the COVID-19 pandemic.

She submitted her resignation last week to take a position with Thomas P. Miller & Associates as a senior consultant in economic development and community resiliency business development. The company is based in Indianapolis but the job will involve travel.

"It has been a tremendous honor to be a part of this Chamber team. I am incredibly grateful for the opportunities this position has afforded me," Bloos said in a release by the Chamber. "More than anything, I am thankful for the invaluable relationships I have developed with Chamber members, board members, ambassadors, community leaders, elected officials, and Chamber staff.

"Madison is primed to accomplish some big goals and push forward with other initiatives that we've been planning, like the diversity initiative focused on attracting and welcoming new residents to our community. Things are really starting to take off, and it would be a lot of fun to be part of that."

Bloos led several projects during her tenure including a new member management system in 2014, the Women in Business event (2015), website redesigns (2016 and 2020), Guide to the Madison Indiana Area magazine (2018) and Chamber Cash Mobs (2019), among others. Soup, Stew, Chili and Brew also saw a 117% increase in growth during her time with the Chamber.

MADISON AREA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

"Lindsay has been a great asset to the Chamber over the past seven years," said Daniel Butler, Chamber Board president. "While we are sad to see her leave, we are thankful for the foundation she has built and wish her success in her future endeavors."

A search committee has been formed to replace Bloos and will work with the Indiana Chamber Executives Association to collect and review resumes, interview candidates and provide the Chamber board with a recommendation. Office Manager Erik Bush and Cassey Higdon, member services specialist, will continue to handle day-to-day operations until a replacement is named.

2 Greendale police officers arrested, charged with misconduct, obstruction

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Indiana State Police have arrested two officers with the Greendale Police Department and a third man who is a brother of one of the officers over the inappropriate use of a police vehicle and the destruction of an SD card containing video footage of the incident.

Indiana State Police Detective Andrew Mitchell determined that on Dec. 26, 2019, Greendale Officers Clinton E. Putnam, 34, and Dustin A. Hatfield, 32, allegedly used Putnam's department vehicle inappropriately while two non-department members were passengers in the vehicle.

Indiana State Police said the Dearborn County dispatch center received a 911 call that evening in which the caller claimed to be at the boat docks behind a McDonald's in Lawrenceburg, saying he witnessed an officer "put a lot of teenagers in a car" and was "doing burnouts all over the parking lot."

Officials with the Lawrenceburg Police Department and the Dearborn County Sheriff's Office both were dispatched, and each reported the incident to their supervisors.

Greendale Police Sgt. Kevin Turner related a conversation he had with officer Hatfield to Indiana State Police, Dearborn County Prosecutor Lynn Deddens said.

Turner alleges that Hatfield's sister had two foreign exchange students, each of whom wanted to see a police cruiser. Since Hatfield was off duty, he allegedly called Officer Putnam, who was on duty, and asked him to meet at the boat docks. At that point, Putnam allowed two teenage girls, ages 15 and 17, to enter his police cruiser, Turner claims.

Clinton E. Putnam

Dustin A. Hatfield

Bradley A. Putnam

The officers then performed "J turns" in Putnam's police cruiser, Turner claims, with the police cruiser traveling at high speeds. However, both Hatfield and Putnam claimed the girls were not inside of the car at the time, investigators said.

After the incident occurred, Putnam, Hatfield, and Putnam's brother, Bradley A. Putnam, 37, destroyed an SD card containing video footage of the incident that was captured on a camera in Putnam's police vehicle. The officers then turned in a different SD card to the Greendale Police Department during the department's inquiry into the incident.

At the conclusion of the investigation, the case was presented to the Dearborn County Prosecutor's Office for review and this week Dustin Hatfield and Clinton Putnam were both arrested on charges of official misconduct and obstruction of oustice, both Level 6 felonies, which Bradley Putnam was arrested on a Level 6 felony charge of obstruction of justice.

Officers Putnam and Hatfield were placed on administrative leave in January.

All three men were incarcerated at the Dearborn County Jail pending their initial appearances in Dearborn County Circuit Court.

for social programs for underprivileged youth, infrastructure projects, public/private partnerships for education, addiction resources and a de-polarization of the partisan conflict in Frankfort.

No Democratic candidates are on the ballot for the 47th District.

Two Democrats and one other Republican are vying to unseat 4th Congressional District Rep. Thomas Massie, a libertarian Republican who won control of the northern Kentucky district in 2012. Todd McMurtry is opposing Massie in his first Republican primary, having gained recent attention for representing Covington Catholic High School student Nick Sandmann in a defamation suit against CNN.

The primary race is already shaping up to be one of the most expensive GOP primaries in Kentucky to date, with the Massie campaign spending over $1 million this year and the McMurtry campaign shelling out close to $300,000, according to political analysts.

Democrats Alexandra Ownsby and Shannon Fabert, meanwhile, are also running for the 4th District. Ownsby is a newcomer to politics and aims to increase access to healthcare and education for under-represented voters, having worked as a nurse and single mother in Cincinnati while amassing student loan debt. Fabert is the child of immigrants with a background in operations management and is promising action on climate change, gun control, immigration and foreign policy.

Many eyes will also be focused on the Democratic primary for United States Senator, with Amy McGrath and Charles Booker emerging as the top candidates to challenge incumbent Republican Mitch McConnell in his sixth reelection campaign this November. Eight other candidates are also running for the Democratic ticket and seven Republicans are running to challenge McConnell.

As for the presidential primary, incumbent President Donald Trump is running unopposed while the Democratic race shows 12 candidates. Joe Biden, the presumptive candidate for the Democratic ticket since Vermont U.S. Sen. Bernie Sanders dropped out of the race in April, finally earned enough delegates to claim that nomination earlier this month, the Associated Press reported.

Those voting Tuesday are reminded to bring a photo ID, Browning said.

back of the courthouse. Applicants should receive their new license within a week.

Residents who have moved from another state or county, have had a name change, or have seen their license lost, stolen or expire before March 1 must stop by with proof of a name change or proof of residency after scheduling an appointment. Residents will be required to abide by all social distancing measures, self-check for symptoms and be wearing a mask before entering.

Appointments are only allowed on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays must be made at https://secure.kentucky.gov/booking.web/Event/Book/178

As for new drivers, Trimble is not yet conducting road tests or permit testing. Permit tests for Trimble residents are being conducted in Gallatin County, but new drivers will first need to email TrimbleCountyDL@KYCourts.net to schedule an appointment at the Trimble courthouse to pick up their test card and information on how to make an appointment in Warsaw, Kentucky. Once the resident has tested and passed testing in Gallatin County, they will need to set up another appointment at the Trimble courthouse to return their test packet and proof of passing the test to receive their permit.

"This will almost certainly not be a one-day process as it has been in the past," Bruner noted in the instructions. Meanwhile, officials do not know when drivers licensing road testing will resume.

Less expectations, less worry

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I so enjoy your column, and, as usual, you are on target in your advice concerning the woman who was hurt by not being notified about her cousin's death.

Two things have caused me to be a happier person. One is dropping my expectations of others, and the other is choosing not to be offended.

People generally don't set out to hurt other people. They are encased in their own pain and trying to navigate through their own rough waters.

Those who would set out to cause pain are not worthy of our tears. I realized also that people cannot read my mind on what I want. So it's best to give them what we need, which is love. Love lavishly, including those who are unlovable. Be thoughtful. Give encouragement and sincere compliments.

I encourage this cousin to send loving words in sympathy cards to her grieving cousins. As you said, "grief has a way of wreaking havoc on short-term memory." — Still Learning

Dear Still Learning: Thank you for your wise words. True wisdom comes when you realize how little in the world you really know and you are forever a student of life. Seeing the world through love and compassion always leads to a better world and a happier life for you.

Dear Annie: In response to the letter regarding a request to wear socks at a party to preserve wood floors, such a request should always be accompanied by a statement of understanding that such an act is not possible for some guests.

As a wheelchair user, I could not take my wheels off my chair! And some people can't walk without their shoes, or they need to use a walker that scrapes the floor.

We will never have a welcoming society for all if hosts create home features that they value over the ability of some guests to visit and enjoy their company. This is a sad example of prioritizing things over people. I had hoped you would point that out, as an example of your usual good advice. — Good Guest in Kansas

Dear Good Guest in Kansas: Thank you for the reminder that not everyone can take their shoes off. A wheelchair should be an obvious exception. If a host complains about a wheelchair, I say that person is not worth visiting at all!

Unwanted clutter

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My parents and my in-laws have a habit of cleaning out their houses by bringing their unwanted things to my house. When we first moved in together, my husband and I thought they were trying to help by giving us things so we wouldn't need to buy them, but it's been over a decade, and it continues.

When asked if we want items from their homes, we always decline. More frequently, though, things are left on our porch or in our garage. Unless it is something we think they may want back (something we know is an heirloom or expensive), we throw everything away. The things we feel like we have to keep go into the attic.

Obviously this is a minimal issue compared to most, but we are tired of being responsible for their unwanted items. Please encourage your readers, especially those downsizing, to manage their own belongings and not push them onto family without asking, and to respect the response. — Minimalist

Dear Minimalist: You and your husband need to have an open and honest conversation with both your and his parents. If you tell them you don't want their items but then keep heirlooms when they are left with you, no wonder everyone is confused. While you are correct that family members should not unload their stuff on one another, it is also traditional for families to pass on heirlooms.

Perhaps you and your husband should go over to your respective parents' houses and decide what is an heirloom and what is trash. My guess is they are unclear. One clean sweep of everyone's stuff will prevent this constant appearance of unwanted items.

Dear Annie: I can empathize totally with Sucker-Punched in Indiana, having had a similar experience years ago when my then husband told me he didn't love me and never had, not even on the day we married. However, he did not want a divorce since we had two young children. I lived with that pain and bitterness for years, feeling trapped, hopeless and depressed.

Eventually, though, friends talked me into seeking therapy, which, like Sucker-Punched, I resisted at first. However, when I finally relented, it was the best decision of my life. I came out on the other side stronger, more sure of who I am and what I want, and realizing I am worth far more than what my husband made me feel I was. Like you, I strongly advise Sucker-Punched to find a good therapist who will help her learn to view her situation with new eyes, make wise decisions and value herself again. I cannot state strongly enough how positively life-changing therapy was for me. — Stronger and Happier From Therapy

Dear Stronger and Happier From Therapy: I'm sorry you coped for so long with a terrible, mean husband, though it's wonderful therapy helped you turn your life around. Love your letter!

Madison's Thurston to play baseball for Fargo RedHawks

Former Cub selected in 6th round of dispersal draft

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison's Ryan Thurston will finally get a chance to get back on the baseball diamond next week, but it won't be in the same place he played a year ago.

Thurston, a 2013 Madison High School graduate and 2018 grad of Western Kentucky University, will play for the Fargo-Moorhead RedHawks of the independent American Association starting Fourth of July weekend.

Like all sports leagues, the American Association has been shut down due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Last week, the league decided to resume play, but with only six teams rather than its usual 12. The Gary SouthShore Railcats, with whom Thurston played in 2019, is not one of the teams that will play this season.

A dispersal draft was held last week with the six remaining squads getting a chance to beef up their rosters with players from the non-participating teams. Thurston was among the 42 players selected, going to last year's league runner-up Fargo-Moorhead in the sixth round.

"I'm excited that I get a chance to pitch for Fargo," Thurston said. "I remember them from last year and I know they were one of the better teams in the league. I'm just happy to get to play."

After spending the 2018 season in the Toronto Blue Jays organization, Thurston signed with the Chicago Dogs of the American Association last season and pitched in just two games. The left-hander then finished out the season with Gary.

In 36 appearances for Chicago and Gary — all in relief — Thurston posted a 4-1 record with a 2.59 ERA and four saves. He struck out 49 batters and walked 28 in 55.2 innings.

Thurston was pleased overall with his season but said that there was still some things that he can do better.

Submitted Photo

Former Madison Cub pitcher Ryan Thurston shown as a member of the Gary SouthShore RailCats last season.

"I was happy with most everything but I need to cut down on my walks," Thurston said.

The American Association schedule calls for the six teams to play a 60-game schedule with a best-of-five championship series to close out the season. The six teams will be grouped in three different hubs, with Fargo-Moorhead and the Winnipeg Goldeyes grouped in Fargo, Chicago and the Milwaukee Milkmen centered in Milwaukee and the St. Paul Saints and the Sioux Falls Canaries grouped in Sioux Falls, South Dakota.

Each team will play 30 games as the home team in their pods and 12 games as the visiting team in their hub, meaning 42 of each team's 60 games will be played at their hub site. The schedule will allow any of the three road clubs to return home for games if local health and governmental restrictions allow for games with fans in attendance.

Each team and stadium will have in place and enforce COVID Readiness Plans, approved by local health and government officials. Stadiums will be configured to return to play with limited capacity to allow for safe social distancing while enjoying live professional baseball.

One of the side-effects of the small league is that the best talent will be grouped over six teams, meaning that every game will feature the best players in the league. Thurston said that this year will be a good chance for he and his fellow players in the league to get a good look from scouts, especially with all other forms of organized baseball in the country shut down.

David Campbell

Former Madison Cub pitcher Ryan Thurston long-tosses during a workout at Southwestern High School earlier this summer. Thurston will open his second season in the independent American Association on July 3 with the Fargo-Moorehead Redhawks after being taken in a special dispersal draft from Gary-Southshore.

"It will be a lot tougher for sure but it will be easier to scout and to see everybody," Thurston said. "If you have a good year you could really stand out and catch somebody's eye."

Thurston will report to Fargo on Thursday for the beginning of an abbreviated spring training with the first game set for Friday, July 3. Fargo-Moorhead and Winnipeg will open the season against each other for a three-game set that weekend.

Tiz the Law eyes ambitious summer schedule

BY BETH HARRIS
AP RACING WRITER

Tiz the Law has been good and lucky, two ingredients essential to success in horse racing.

He's been dominant, too.

He raced to a 3 3/4-length victory Saturday in the Belmont Stakes to open the rescheduled Triple Crown. His five wins in six career starts have been by an average margin of 19 1/4 lengths. His only loss came at Churchill Downs in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes last year, when he finished third on a sloppy track.

In 11 weeks, he'll get a chance to avenge that defeat over the same Louisville track in the Kentucky Derby.

Tiz the Law has an ambitious summer and fall campaign ahead of him if all goes according to plan.

Next up is the Travers on Aug. 8 at Saratoga, where Tiz the Law would be competing on his home turf in upstate New York. It's where he won for the first time last August. As the first New York-bred Belmont winner since 1882, his following only figures to get bigger. However, it remains to be seen whether fans would be allowed to attend at any point in the Saratoga meet, which opens July 16.

"I've never won the Travers and I want to win it," trainer Barclay Tagg said.

Then comes the Kentucky Derby on Sept. 5 and the Preakness on Oct. 3 — no word yet on spectators at either race — to close out the Triple Crown. The bay colt would finish the year in the Breeders' Cup Classic at Keeneland on Nov. 7.

Jack Knowlton of Sackatoga Stable — comprised of 34 partners who paid $110,000 for Tiz the Law — hasn't been able to cheer his colt in person since Feb. 1 at Gulfstream in Florida. He watched Tiz the Law win the Florida Derby on March 28 from his condo near the track and the Belmont at a restaurant in Saratoga Springs. The colt has earned over $1.5 million.
